DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. A substitute specification in proper idiomatic English and in compliance with 37 CFR 1.52(a) and (b) is required. The substitute specification filed must be accompanied by a statement that it contains no new matter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

3. Claims 1 – 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. In particular the compression procedure is either written in such poor English as to be incomprehensible or simply would not work. It is the examiner's best guess that the compression procedure revolves around summing up the contents of each row and each column, these summations are then sent to the receiver. If this were the case though, the invention would not work, as there would not be enough information for the receiver to decompress the data.

4. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

5. The claims are generally narrative and indefinite, failing to conform with current U.S. practice. They appear to be a literal translation into English from a foreign document and are replete with grammatical and idiomatic errors.

6. Claims 1 – 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. As previously stated the compression procedure is so poorly documented in the specification and so poorly described in the claims as to be either incomprehensible or nonfunctional.

7. For the remainder of this action the basic sender and receiver method for transmitting a compressed, encrypted digital signature that is attached to a data file will be considered but the remaining portions of the claims will not be addressed for the reasons provided above.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

8. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000.

Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

9. Claims 1 – 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Barton (6,101,604).

10. In regards to claims 1 – 4, Barton discloses in the paragraph starting on column 7, line 2 that a digital signature is calculated for a data block. In the next paragraph the digital signature is appended to the data block. In the next paragraph the data block, containing the digital signature is compressed. Finally in the next paragraph the data block is encrypted. In the same paragraph a private key (secret key) and a public key are disclosed. Moving on to the receiver. In the paragraph starting at column 8, line 16 Barton discloses that the data block is decrypted. In the paragraph starting at column 8, line 31 Barton discloses that the data block is decompressed. Finally in the paragraph starting at column 8, line 21 Barton discloses that the obtained digital signature is compared to a recalculated (using the same procedure as the sender) digital signature to ensure legitimacy.

Conclusion

11. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

12. US Pat. 5,295,188 discloses a sender receiver system for transmitting a digital signature that utilizes matrices to compress and encrypt the digital signature.
